

OPIOIDS & SUBSTANCE USE DISORDER RESOURCES

Southeastern Idaho Public Health's Goal

The goal of the Drug Overdose Prevention Program at Southeastern Idaho Public Health (SIPH) is to advance opioid prevention work through public and prescriber education, local capacity building, public safety partnerships, and addressing the social determinants of health. To help further our community partners work in preventing substance use disorders, SIPH has developed this resource guide. In this packet, you will find opioid prescribing data and local resources, including where to get free naloxone.

Statistics

In 2021, 353 deaths related to any drug overdose occurred in Idaho. Out of those, 241 were related to an opioid overdose. In addition, 5,058 emergency department visits related to any drug overdose occurred, and 1,180,947 prescriptions for opioids were issued in Idaho. Further, while substance use disorder (SUD) is a serious problem in the United States, less than 1 in 10 people with a SUD receive treatment.

MOUD Treatment

Medication for Opioid Use Disorder, or MOUD, is currently the most effective form of treatment of opioid misuse, because it uses medication along with behavioral therapies to help those with an opioid disorder manage their addiction to live a normal life.

The information in this packet was updated May 2023. For an updated list, please visit <https://www.siphidaho.org/community-health/dopp.php>.

NALOXONE

Naloxone is a medication that temporarily reverses the effects of an opioid overdose.

Who should carry it?

- Anyone who is prescribed opioids or is around someone prescribed opioids.
- Anyone who uses illicit opioids or may be around someone who uses illicit opioids.
- Anyone who may encounter someone overdosing.

How to get it?

- Anyone can get naloxone, it does not need to be intended for your own use.
- Ask for a prescription from a pharmacist or your healthcare provider.
- Idaho Harm Reduction Project – request free injectable naloxone provided through Direct Relief at <https://www.idahoharmreductionproject.org/>.
- Direct Relief - Eligible organizations (community health centers, free clinics, harm reduction organizations, recovery housing, public health departments, schools, universities, libraries, and YMCA's) can apply for free naloxone at <https://www.directrelief.org/apply/>

Important Notes

- Naloxone is only effective on overdoses involving opioids.
- Individuals overdosing should receive medical services immediately.
- The effects of naloxone only last 30-60 minutes and in some cases with highly potent fentanyl only 20 minutes.
- Naloxone should be stored at room temperature.
- If you're interested in a naloxone administration training, please contact the Drug Overdose Prevention Program at Southeastern Idaho Public Health at (208) 239-5228.

Idaho's Response to the Opioid Crisis

The cards shown below are wallet cards that can be ordered for FREE through Idaho's Crisis & Suicide Hotline and the Idaho Department of Health and Welfare. These cards are a great resource to hand out to individuals you come in contact with. It provides numbers to call for help, including community resources, treatment, naloxone, recovery support, and the suicide prevention hotline.

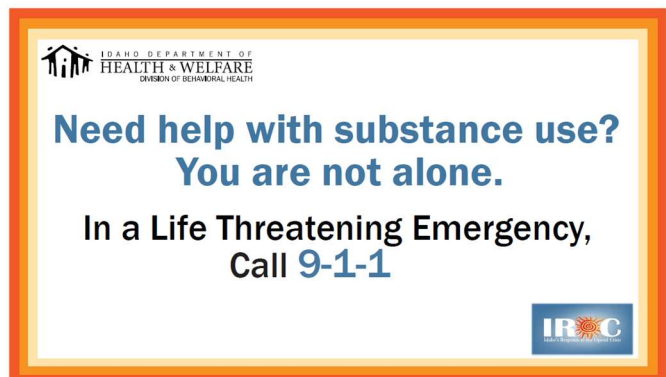

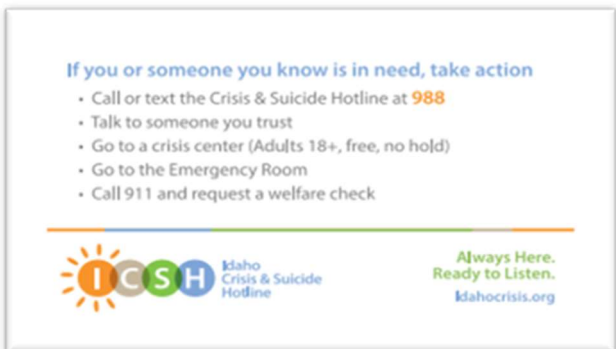

If you are interested in ordering the ICSH cards, visit:
